SADIE AND PSYCHOLOGY.

The "No I'm Not But I Don't Give a Damn" club seems to be gaining members much faster than the "No I'm Not But I Wish To Hell I Was" organization, if we are to judge by the number of membership badges of the former, to be seen around the campus. We tried to get a psychologist to explain it but everyone except engineers seem to take that course and only engineers appear to have enough nerve to try and explain it. One fair co-ed (very fair indeed) claims that its due to an inferiority complex but the others either looked blank or spouted long words until we looked blank. We're willing to bet that the defiant "Don't Give a Damn" ones can be coaxed. How about it?

CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

A more equitable scoring system than that formerly used will be introduced at this year's Dartmouth Carnival and we don't mean in picking the Queen. The old idea was there was a possible 100 points for each of the four events and also another 100 for the combined cross country and jump. This last has always been a weak point so far as McGill was concerned and often meant the difference between winning and losing the Carnival. Now there will be combined points awarded for downhill and slalom, bringing those events up to parity in point getting power with the jump and langlauf.

Without trying to put a jinx on the boys we'll predict that this change in scoring may make a very big difference in the results of the Carnival. Of the four downhill and slalom men to make the trip this year to Hanover three are real veterans, in fact the Indians must be starting to think that they're permanent fixtures at McGill, they've been to so many Carnivals. Barring such horrible breaks as binding cables snapping in the middle of the down hill, or something like that, these four should pile up quite a few points in their events and, as explained above, any lead gained here will be much more important than formerly, when the jump and cross country come along.

GLUWEIN.

One prediction that we'll make without any worries is that the Redmen will retain their usual prominence in the way of celebrations, singing ski songs, inhaling of gluhwein and all the little extras that go to make up a successful Carnival. For the uninitiated, gluhwein is a famous Indian herbal remedy, handed down through generations from the original Dartmouth Indian. Every year, a week before Carnival, eight of Dartmouth's strongest men bid a fond farewell to their friends and retire to the woods about the town to go through all the mystic rites entailed in the preparation of this fine old tonic. The original recipe of old Chief Gallon-at-a-Gulp is a closely guarded secret but it is rumored that the brew... preparation contains the blood of a wildcat, eagle feathers, moose milk, a flash of lightning, and ethyl hydroxide which is more commonly known by its Indian name of "Big Stick in a Small Bottle" or "Fire-water."

Like all old Indian remedies, gluhwein is good "For What Ails Man or Beast" and can even be used for removing ski wax, varnish and unwanted guests. It has a remarkably stimulating and sometimes even atrophying effect on whatever it gets inside of. It is commonly used to improve and aid the eyesight, in fact it doubles the power

NEWMANS ARRANGE FORMAL IN UNION

Decorations to Be on Theme of St. Valentine's Day

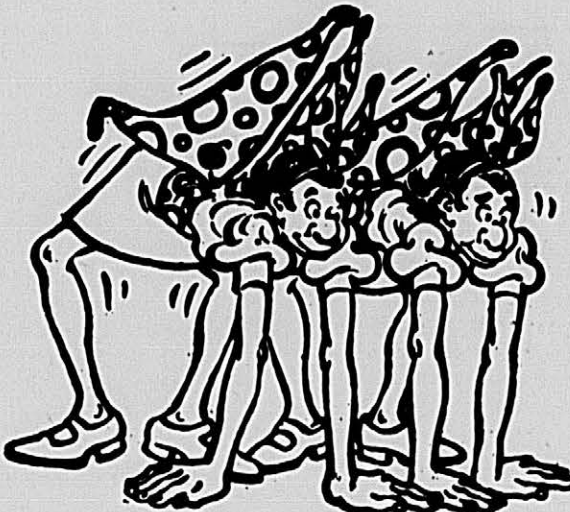

The Newman Club has made plans to hold their Formal Dance this year on February 13, in the McGill Union.

LI'L ABNER FEARS SADIE TO BEAT GUN

Author of "Good Morning, Bill" Is Writing New Book

P. G. Wodehouse Keeps Busy in Nazi Prison-Camp

by E. V. S.

There has never been a better example of the true British spirit of imperturbable calm, pluck, and ability to laugh in the face of adversity than the unparalleled story of P. G. Wodehouse. The author of the McGill Players Club's forthcoming production of "Good Morning, Bill," and the creator of the unexampled Jeeves is at present calmly sitting in the padded cell of an ex-mad house in a Silesian prison camp, writing a new book on the Commandant's typewriter.

The situation itself is material for a good comedy such as only Wodehouse can write, but it is very unlikely that he will write such a comedy until he is safely out of the enemy's clutches. In the meantime he is doing a tale about three American crooks in England.

When interviewed by an Associated Press reporter Mr. Wodehouse was wearing a long, heavy tan bathrobe, held together by a leather belt, and in trousers, sweater, jacket, and gloves. He carried a three-inch stack of sheets of paper—the innards of the new book.

Daily Schedule
Asked about his daily schedule, Wodehouse laughed, and obtaining permission from the accompanying German officer, said that his day began with reveille at 6 a.m., dress and wash, the breakfast, followed by roll call at 9 o'clock, after which the prisoners have a chance to see the doctor and pursue their own occupations until lunch, since civilians are not required to do any manual labour. After lunch Mr. Wodehouse retires to the small side room beside the recreation room to continue work on his latest book.

It has often been said that the style is the man himself, and Wodehouse has certainly lived up to this maxim. Attempts are being made by influential citizens in the United States, to get Wodehouse outside the barbed wire and into a hotel, where he could merely report to the authorities from time to time, but these have so far been unsuccessful.

ALFRED NOYES CLOSSES SERIES

Speaks on 'The Relation Between Poetry and Reality'

Declares That Poetry Is Vitrally Concerned With Fundamental Realities

Poetry is very closely related to reality, said Alfred Noyes in the final lecture in the series in Moyse Hall yesterday. But he went on to say that poetry is concerned with the fundamental realities, the fundamental concepts of the universe and not material details of the temporal world.

Dr. Noyes spoke to a large gathering of students and invited guests who filled the hall to overflowing. He was introduced and thanked by the Hon. Dr. Cyrus McMillan, M.P., Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science.

Speaking on the subject "The Relation of Poetry and Reality," Dr. Noyes stated that in his opinion many modern poets dwell too much on superficial realities of the material world, and neglected the basic and fundamental realities. Quoting from Shakespeare's "The Tempest" he pointed out that these material things are subject to change and decay, while the fundamental realities are timeless and unending.

The poet need not deal with these more significant values in a sermon, but rather may suggest them. He may do it unconsciously. Referring to science, he stated that true science, far from preaching against these spiritual values, leads more and more to their realization and acceptance. He quoted Darwin to show that even this master of evolutionists believed that the universe did not just "happen" without the help of some Creator. He went on to point out that Herbert Spencer, the most outstanding agnostic of the 19th century, believed that there was some Presence behind the universe.

DEBATES WILL BE HELD SOON

Doubleheader Slated for Thursday, February 20th

McGill Will Argue Against Laval and Western Universities

On Tuesday night, the Standing Committee of the Debating Union Society held a meeting to discuss plans for this year's intercollegiate debates.

A doubleheader has been set for February 20th against Laval and Western Universities. A. Gadbois, Law 2, member of the Law Debating Team, and A. Stalker, B.A. 4, Vice-president of the Debating Union Society, will represent McGill at the bilingual debate against Laval. M. Weiner, B.A. 2, last year's winner of the Arts debating "A", and H. L. Henderson, Grad. Sch., President of the Debating Union Society will uphold McGill against Western. A. Stalker and L. Henderson are winners of the "Debating Key," a major award for prominent intercollegiate debating.

Another date set is March 6th, when a debating team from Trinity College, Toronto, will visit McGill; for the same evening the Reford Challenge Trophy competition has scheduled a debate at which four members of the Debating Union Society selected by the executive of the society will take part.

It has been decided that the privilege to wear the debating "A," an award given to the two best debaters in each year, has been granted to the following students:

Commerce:
1st year: L. Manolson, W. Beaton.
2nd year: D. Delvin, R. Roland.
3rd year: E. Skutezky, J. Toller.

Arts:
1st year: B. Archambault, T. Huggesen.

3rd year: L. MacDonald, H. Farmer.
4th year: M. Hollinger, A. Stalker.

Plumbers Plan For Debate Versus Arts

The Engineering debating society is planning to hold a meeting this week with the view of fostering debating among the engineers. The meeting, whose date and place will be announced on the bulletin-board of the Engineering Building, is being called by Walt Ward, chairman of the Engineering Debating Society.

As stated by Walt Ward, the meeting is being called principally to further debating among the Plumbers but among those invited are not only those who feel the ability to debate, but all Engineers. As an added incentive a challenge has been put forth by the artsmen for a debate to be held in the near future.

Prices for "I Don't Give a Damn" Club Membership Rise

Yesterday morning the pre-engineering students decided to take a hand in the activities preceding the arrival of Miss Hawkins in town Saturday. At ten o'clock a first year science student in the hall of the engineering building stopped everyone in sight and offered the badges and membership to the "No I'm not but I don't give a Damn" club for the sum total of 10c. A short while after that the president of the society had bought his badge in the hall of the Arts Building and walked out onto the steps. Whereupon he was captured by a designing female and, turning around, sold his pin to the nearest bystander at a tidy profit.

In the engineering building Fred Barton entered the lists of the club and persuaded these doubting customers, to whom the now increased price of the badge (it had risen from 10c to 15c during the forenoon) seemed too exorbitant. Finally Fred hit upon an idea to promote the sale of the badges still further by making it possible for the plumbers to capture the necessary cash for themselves. For this purpose he began by throwing handfuls of pennies among the crowds of plumbers gathered in the foyer of the building at 11 o'clock. A wild scramble ensued with engineers pacing the floor and crawling in all possible attitudes in the search after the copper riches. The combatants were fired by the deluding cries of Fred who pretended that the next scatterer would consist of nickles and quarters. The shower ended with several packages of chewing gum and candy which split under the impact of a solid wall of engineers and scattered all varieties of edibles through the front door followed by frantic plumbers. In the middle of the fracas one member of the faculty of science was seen to pick up an entire bag of lollipops.

MODERN TREND OF POETRY NOT PUBLIC DESIRE

Noyes States People's Opinion Not Represented by Critics

JOURNALISM DIVERGENT

Believes Canada Can Help Restore Faith Lost in Europe

"Canada can set her face against the perversions which have attacked the poetry of the old world." This is the interpretation by Dr. Alfred Noyes of the part our country can play in the future development of poetry. In an interview yesterday after the third in his series of lectures, Dr. Noyes stated his belief that Canada can help restore the faith which has been lost in Europe.

Mentioning the late John Buchan's conviction that the present trouble rises from attacks on religion, the well-known poet quoted Lord Tweedsmuir's statement that "Fate is an anvil which has outworn many hammers."

The people do not really welcome the modern trend said Dr. Noyes; nor can the literary criticisms in journals be considered to represent the opinions of the public. He mentioned an experience of his own, when, after reading an editorial stating that no one would dare read Longfellow on a public platform, Dr. Noyes gave a lecture to a teachers' association quoting from that poet, and received much applause.

Another example of the divergence of journalism from common opinion was the statement by Hitler is one of the greatest men who ever lived. This illustrates the point

Why a Sadie Hawkins Week?

A great number of girls, and boys too for that matter, don't seem to know what is expected of them during Sadie Hawkins week. Although it is intended to be a means of getting acquainted, and creating a spirit of friendly informality among students of both sexes, there are many who speak of Sadie Hawkins week as senseless tomfoolery, simply because they approach the matter with the wrong attitude.

The theme of Sadie Hawkins is friendly informality. The Co-eds are not expected to go through the elaborate ceremony of formally asking the boys for a date. It should just be a matter of "Hi, there, how about going with me to the 5 cent dance in the Union Monday?" And the expected answer is not a lot of heeing and hawing, but "Okey Doke," or "Sorry, I've already got a date." And those who are given the latter reply should not feel insulted at being refused, because there might be a multitude of reasons why the boy can't accept the date, even though he really may not be going to the dance Monday.

As it is, far too few boys are being dated. Those who have time for extra-curricular activities, and have lost their shyness after a few years at college are being asked out by the girls whom they've met at some time or another, but a mass of others are being left out of the fun, not because there aren't enough girls to go around, but because the girls haven't yet gotten it into their heads that during Sadie Hawkins week they are supposed to mimic the boys' sometimes inept manner of dating them. It is all supposed to be a great joke, not a life and death matter as some seem to consider it.

And girls may do well to remember that spending a lot of money on a date puts the boy under an obligation, and where he might be tempted to accept a date, the thought of being put under an obligation is very likely to result in a refusal.

Some boys feel awfully shy at having to stand aside and watch the girl paying for the coke, show, or what have you. Although it is a matter for individual judgment, since some blushing Romeos dislike that sort of thing, the girl-friend may be sure that no one will object if she gives the amount she intends to spend to her escort beforehand. We may add, however, that that isn't exactly cricket.

A list of places to go and things to do has appeared in The Daily before now. Included are such items as the Sadie Slide on Monday, the tea-dance in the Union Grill Room, also on Monday, and the Spinners' Spree on Friday. At least one of these is practically a must, but there are any number of other things to do, depending upon the individual. Boys do like to go to the show, if they have opportunity for an informal chat afterwards. For those who can afford it the Ice Follies seem to be indicated. On the other hand, the girls would be surprised how many boys there are who could really go for Alexander Brailowsky's Recital in Plateau

Hall on February 3rd, or the Ballet Russe. But some of these are an unnecessarily expensive way of getting acquainted, and not informal enough to be in keeping with the spirit of Sadie Hawkins. A walk with a stop-off somewhere along the way for a cup of coffee is in the best Sadie style. The thing is to get acquainted, not to go somewhere with some Sadie, and part after a couple of hours with even her name still a mystery.

Above all, Sadies small, tall, skinny, and otherwise will be carrying out the primary motive for having such a week by dating boys whom they haven't ever met before. It's much more fun to play Harlequin and Columbine at a masquerade, to set out on an exciting adventure of mutual discovery. Going out with those with whom the girls have had many previous dates will mean that an invitation during Sadie Hawkins week will be just another date. And much of the humour, romance, and adventure of Sadie Hawkins will lose its charm.

Off the Record

A revamped Columbia Records Corporation is giving Victor stiff competition these days. Under a new tie-up with CBS, the rejuvenated Columbians are out to match the best in the field by copying off such topnotch artists as Petri, Gieseking, Milstein, Szigetti, the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under Barbirolli, Stokowski and the All-American Youth Orchestra, the Cleveland Symphony with Rodzinski, and Dimitri Mitropoulos' Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. Add to this earlier contracts with Beecham and Weingartner, and you have a formidable array of topnotchers. Among the recent Columbia releases, we prefer Milstein's handling of the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto to Heifetz's older version, though Frederick Stock's Chicago Symphony is not as colourful tonally as Barbirolli's London Philharmonic. The Milstein tone is broader and the interpretation though less glossy is perhaps more sincere. To us, Milstein's performance is far more exciting but then, it's largely a question of personal taste. Jascha can hardly be classed as a slouch.

Another fine Tchaikovsky recording is the Egon Petri performance of the B flat minor Piano Concerto, accompanied by the London Philharmonic under Walter Goehr. There is more fire than usual in Petri's solid playing and his rounded singing tone makes this quite a remarkable performance on the whole.

The tremendous volume of Tchaikovsky released this year, coincides with the hundredth anniversary of the great Russian composer whose most popular work, the Fifth Symphony, is played beautifully by the Cleveland Orchestra conducted by Artur Rodzinski. This is perhaps one of Columbia's outstanding achievements in a technical way. With amazing fidelity, the engineers have transferred to wax a stirring interpretation of music which is played a little too often to retain its appeal, year after year. But it seems to us that even hardened cynics will thrill to the inspired and well-paced playing of the Cleveland men, and to the shamefully under-rated work of Rodzinski at the podium.

The All-America Youth Orchestra, which last summer toured South America under Leopold Stokowski, makes its record debut, appropriately enough, in Dvorak's Symphony No. 5 "From the New World." It is an unmistakable tribute to Stokowski's dominating personality that this group of talented young musicians performs so well after only a few months of playing together. But Stokowski's histrionics are more than we can swallow except in small doses, and the recording is acoustically, not up to his exacting standard with the Philadelphia. Tricky change of pace may be a necessary part of every great baseball pitcher's repertoire, but on the concert stage it is a mark of shoddy sensationalism.

Popular Music

Benny Goodman's new band appears on wax for the first time in "Henderson Stomp" and "Nobody," on Columbia record C157. Frankly, both sides are disappointing. Stomp was written and arranged by Fletcher Henderson and features Smack on piano as well as Benny on clarinet. Nevertheless, although the arrangement lends itself to good swing, Result—a mediocre side. The reverse features Helen Forrest in a pleasant vocal—but catch the sloppy ensemble work of both saxes and brass. "Frenesi," that BMI-sused melody, was evidently recorded by the Goodman crew at a later date, for it shows great improvement. But the old Goodman brilliance is still missing. "Hard to Get," the flipover, is probably the worst side Goodman ever recorded.

In "My Wanderin' Man" (Columbia C172), Count Basie's band slips into a delicate blues groove. A year ago, I would never have believed that this band could play delicately, but during the past few months the Count has done much to increase the versatility of his outfit. Don Redman's jump arrangement of "Five O'Clock Whistle," on the reverse, makes Basie sound as if he were trying to imitate Raymond Scott. On both these sides we miss the tremendous virility of the Count's natural uninhibited style.

Gene Krupa's "Blues Kreig" (Columbia C187) is a run-of-the-mill riff tune, and apart from good solos by tenorman Bates and trumpeter Cherock, kicks not at all. "Yes My Darling Daughter" goes to show that even Irene Daye pulls a boner sometimes.

What may turn out to be the last recordings made by Hal Kemp before his death were issued by Victor this month. They are "So You're the One," "Walkin' by the River," "The Moon Fell in the River" and "The Lady with the Red Hair." There's not much that one can say about this kind of music. All tunes are given a good treatment in the traditional Kemp style, and serve to illustrate the oft-repeated contention of jazzmen that good sweet music is still possible without resort to trombone glisses and wailing saxophones.

Even your reviewer (who is quite inured to this sort of thing) could not stomach more than a few bars of Cab Calloway's "Goin' Conga" (Columbia C169), which features such eminent conga and rumba experts as Chu Berry, Tyree Glenn and Cosy Cole on gourd, castanets and maracas. The reverse, "North of the Mohawk Trail" is no better than its title would lead you to expect. Even the gorgeous slipshoring of Tyree Glenn could not save the platter from our critical ascan.

"Frenesi" (What, again?) is handled neatly and cleanly by Al Donahue on Columbia C175. In addition to fine work by the sax section, there are good bits by piano, alto and tenor. Phil (Yes, he used to be with Lloyd Huntley) Brito sings very soothingly on "I Hear a Rhapsody," the reverse.

Music Notes

Fritz Sledry conducted the orchestra of Les Concerts Symphoniques in a purely orchestral program last Tuesday evening. The audience was noticeably smaller than when some visiting soloist is on hand to perform a tour de force with the orchestra, but made up for its size by its enthusiasm.

It was rewarding to see the orchestra cut down to a string section of less than thirty members for the exquisite Eine Kleine Nachtmusik of Mozart. This work as the name suggests, a little night music, is a simple evening serenade consisting of four parts, a serenade, a romance, a minuet and a rondo. The string section of Les Concerts Symphoniques had a field day, and did credit to themselves playing delicately and with precision. Sledry's conducting gave the whole an intimate quality, one suspects him of being thoroughly versed in this genre, since he is the permanent conductor of the New Friends of Music in New York City, who make a specialty of Mozart and Haydn.

Again in the prelude to Lohengrin, the string passages were noticeably well-phrased and the brasses performed with admirable restraint. In the prelude A l'Après-Midi d'une Faune, all sections of the orchestra united with Mr. Sledry in conveying the pure sensual impressionism of Debussy; justice was done to the rich orchestration and the solo flute was excellent. This tonal sketch has been the stamping ground of all aspiring male ballet dancers since Nijinsky created the role thirty years ago, but visually in Nijinsky's dance conception of the prelude as universally adopted, the jerky gestures of the faun tend to detract from the liquid rhythm of the music.

The first symphony of Brahms made up the major part of the program. This symphony, the greatest first symphony of any composer and the most popular of Brahms four, is the richest in pure melody. Who can accuse Brahms of being cold, severe and unmelodic after hearing this work? In his conception of the symphony, Mr. Sledry confirmed the impression, made at his last concert, that he is a sincere and authoritative conductor able to bring out the better qualities of an orchestra. The pizzicato sections of the third movement afforded an example of this, they were precise and shaded to a pleasing delicacy. The horns redeemed themselves for minor errors by playing the Westminster motif of the fourth movement beautifully. Unfortunately, the tympanist performed rather over-zealously in the opening bars of the first movement.

On Sunday, the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra (CBF), conducted by Fabien Sevitsky, will present "L'Isola Disabitata," by Haydn. This will be played from manuscript. Vivaldi-Antonio's Concerto No. 1 for flute and strings, and the Overture to Benvenuto Cellini, by Berlioz.

At four, Bruno Walter conducts the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in the third of his four guest appearances. Joseph Szigeti, world-famous violinist will appear as soloist. The music of Sibelius, Dvorak, and Mendelssohn will be featured.

At 8.30, "The Pause That Refreshes On the Air" will present Andre Kostelanetz, directing the forty-five piece orchestra, with John Carter, Metropolitan Opera tenor, as guest artist. Albert Spalding, renowned violinist, is co-featured on this program, which is also heard over CBF.

Apropos of mention of the opera broadcasts is the following: When the Metropolitan Opera House was modernized last season, the old curtain, which for thirty-five years had risen and fallen on much that is now operatic history, was discarded. But it is not "curtains" for the old curtain. It has been cut up into book-marks and is being sold to opera fans with tendencies toward the sentimental. The money realized by the sales will be used for a students' fund through which tickets to the "Met." will be purchased for the use of music students.

One of the oddest requests for a section came from an Australian who wanted one with holes in it. He had heard that Lily Pons cut a hole in the curtain for every new role she sang, and he happened to be a Pons admirer. One letter came from a man in California who wanted a piece quite understandably. He was the Metropolitan's curtain boy in 1904.

News is heard of the formation of the "Free Company," a group representative of leading American writers, playwrights, and artists. Members of the company at present include Robert Sherwood, Marc Connelly, William Saroyan, Maxwell Anderson, Burgess Meredith, Orson Welles, and a whole company of others equally conspicuous upon the contemporary artistic scene. While plans seem to be still somewhat tentative, the main reason for the conception of the Company seems to be for the purpose of counter-attacking propaganda in the United States. It will be interesting to follow the development of this Free Company.

BALLAD OF THE BROOKLYNESE

Oiving and Moitle were sweethearts
They had the oige to moige,
When Oiving got a raise one day
And went out on a spoige.

He went out on a spoige one night
'Cause now he could be wed.
He tried to ride a copper's horse,
And fell off on his head.

Now Moitle, when she got the noos,
She said, "I'm not overjerd
She was saying these words
I'll never marry another guy—
Noone can fill this verd."

'There ain't noone in Canarsie,
No fellow in Flatbush,
Ain't none on Hogg-Island—
My Gawd! How he could mush!"

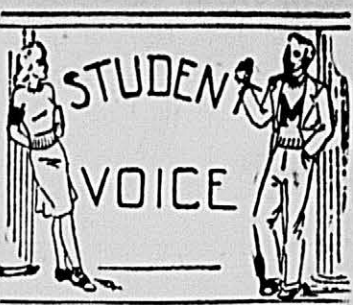

Then Moitle met a guy named Oil,
Who was a dapper apple.
He asked her if she'd be his bride
She showed him to a chapel.

One night as Moitle lay in bed
Saw Oiving's bloody face
After she screamed Oil looked and said,
"Ain't noone in the place."

"Hey goll there's noone in the place.
You sure are a boid!
You ate too many ersters kid"
But Moit didn't say a woid.

For she seen Oiving's face all round
It drove the girl clean louny
The doctor come and took her away
And now she's at Kings County.

Editor
McGill Daily,
Dear Mr. Editor,
May I as a member of the Cosmopolitan Club Executive and a student in the Faculty of Engineering, express my views on the conflicting dance dates of the two above mentioned groups.

Why not pass the decision to the Committee of the Students' Council, which has been given authority over such matters, and let them settle the problem. As far as I can see, priority should be the first consideration, and to this I can add that the Cosmopolitan Club has the decided edge, since our dance was planned and arranged with the Union House Committee in November.

Whatever happens, let's be sensible, and come to a fair agreement, as befitting university students.

Truly yours,
LOUIS GRAVEL,

E Company Run Up 5-2 Score in Hockey Game

Owen, Pete, Ritchie Star for Winning Team

The Engineers added another hockey victory to their unbeaten schedule yesterday by downing C Company by an impressive 5-2 count. To date E and B Companies are the only teams that have not been defeated.

The game started off in high gear with neither team being able to gain an advantage. E Company opened the scoring as Herb Owen broke away to score unassisted. Morrison evened the count on a pass from Young to tie the game up. A few minutes later Young sent C Company into the lead on a pass from Cowan only to have Owen tie the score up for the second time. There was no further scoring in this frame, both teams missing many fine chances.

RITCHIE SHINES.
The second period was far inferior to the first as the hockey was slow and sloppy. Owen caught the opposing team off guard as he scored his third goal of the afternoon, sending E Company into the lead which they maintained till the end of the game. The period continued in this dilatory manner although Ritchie sparked in goals on many occasions. Morris was not so successful for C Company as Peto slipped one past to him to make the count 4-2. During this frame Morrison was benched for holding.

NO SUBSTITUTES.
The players staggered on the ice for the third period and consequently this period was even worse than the previous stanza. This fatigue was due, not to the poor condition of the players but to the fact that there were no substitutes on either side. Peto managed to score his second goal of the game on an assist from Owen. This concluded the scoring and all players were only too glad to hear the whistle ending the game.

Ritchie, Owen and Peto starred for the winners while Morrison and Young turned in the best game for the losers.

Speaking of skiing, what happened to the M.R.T.B.'s ski platoon? During the Christmas holidays, two parades were to be held at St. Sauveur. About twenty turned out for the first one and the second one was rained out—and that was the last we heard of the ski platoon! According to Lorne Lindsay, the outfit may be revived again after the Dartmouth week-end with a view to training a team to enter the Inter-regional ski race later on in the season. This annual event combines a thorough knowledge of compass work together with a reasonable savvy of how to control skis. This week-end's Army cross country ski meet should be a good primer for the latter event.

We see by the Montrealer that at a preview of the season's women's ski ensembles in one of the local fur emporiums, red, white, and blue were decided upon as the season's smart color scheme. (Don't ask us why we were reading a women's style article; we don't know, either). This color combination is nothing new to McGill co-eds. For years now they have been going up north bedecked in tricky McGill red and white get-ups, adding the bluish effect after the first few crack-ups.

If any of you'll ain't got nothing to do Saturday afternoon drop around to the Cote des Neiges Ski jump where the Laurentian Zone Jumping Championship is being run off. There's nothing quite like the thrill of seeing those boys flying through the air with a couple of pieces of kindling strapped to their feet and landing 150 feet or so down the hill. A good proportion of McGill men will perform and they should be right up at the top of the list. John Foster, won a competition two weeks ago on the same slide and with the excellent conditions now prevailing, he may be the one to better "Punch" Bott's

Sports Notices

BOXING.
There is a boxing practise at 6 p.m. today, at the gym. Lately only about fifteen men have been turning out and Coach Bert Light would like to see an increase, particularly the following: Simpson, Kerr, Lewis, Baird, Munn, Ridewood, Pomerantz, Grassby, Weldon, Haddeland, Kane, Nelson, Macauley, Lockhead, Heron, Phillips, Taylor, Rhys, Kenny, Covo, Bennett, Watts, Sababath, Osteapovich, MacKenzie, Rose, Jay.

R.V.C. Sports

The regular weekly Co-Ed outdoor ski class will take place this afternoon on Mount Royal. The class will get underway at 4.15 and all those turning out should meet the coach at the Park Slide. These classes are primarily for beginners and in the past few years have helped considerably in the girls' progress (on skis). A list has been posted in R.V.C. and those intending to enroll in the series of classes should sign before noon on Thursday.

Fencing Club

The Women's Fencing Club will have its photo for the Annual taken at Notman's, 1330 Sherbrooke St. on Saturday, Feb. 1, 1941 at 12.15 p.m. All members are urged to be there on time. Gym outfits will be worn, and will all those having foils please bring them.

record of 160 feet. "Punch" by the way, may not be able to defend his title due to an ankle injury sustained on the Mount Baldy run last Sunday.

Coed Pucksters Meet Engineers

Another hockey practice was held last night by the coeds, in preparation for the great game of the season — the "Coeds vs. Engineers," which takes place on Wednesday, February 5th. This being Sadie Hawkin's week, the girl hockeyists will be out to get their men, it certainly will be exciting to see whether or not the "Plumbers" will try to beat the coeds and in this way avenge their defeat from last year. Another thing, last year the boys treated the fairer sex to refreshments — this year it will be up to the girls to the entertaining.

TEAM TO BE CHOSEN.

The turnouts have been much better lately, and it is hoped that they continue in the same channel because a team has to be chosen shortly, in order that a team picture can be taken for the Annual. To have a good team, there must be co-operation on the part of the players, which can best be done by turning out to as many practices as possible.

There will be a special practice this Thursday from 2-3 p.m., in addition to the regular practice on Friday. All those who possibly can are asked to turn out, and if any further information is required those interested should get in touch with the manager—M. Baty.

INTERSECTION HOCKEY.

Intersection hockey will also be played at McGill. The games will be played in the form of elimination tournaments, which will commence February 11th and end on the 28th—providing six sections can get up teams to take part. Although six players are necessary to make up a team, five will be accepted, if need be. Those desiring to play for their section should give their names to their section managers as soon as possible. The sections that do not enter a team in the competition, will lose out when the points are awarded. Practices can be arranged with the manager, and no experience is necessary, as long as the coeds are able to skate.

Section B 1 Victorious In Basketball at High

Yesterday afternoon saw the third in the series of Intersection Basketball games in action in the Montreal High School gymnasium from 5-6 p.m. when Section D I defeated Section D II.

Once more, proving the interest that is very much apparent in this new type of competition, there was a full team representing each of the sections, although yesterday there were no subs. It is hoped that in next Monday's game there will be more of an audience to support the two rival squads, as yesterday's tilt was certainly well worth watching with fast passing and neat combinations.

Throughout the game the two teams were so close that it was difficult to determine which would mark up the greatest number of points, however, section B I managed to get in the lead finishing the game with a 26-20 gain over the D II squad. Elizabeth Strong who chalked up most of the points for the winning squad showed championship calibre.

Next week the game will take place on Monday in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium and all co-eds who are interested in Basketball are asked to watch the notice board in R.V.C. and to turn out at the Gymnasium and be on the floor at 5 p.m. sharp.

Commerce Excursion
It has been announced by the Commerce Undergraduate Society that a bus will leave the McGill Union today at 2.30 p.m. to take commerce students to a local brewery. The students are asked to assemble at the Union before the specified time to allow for a punctual departure. The attention of Commerce students is drawn to the fact that this visit is an unique occasion and they should not fail to avail themselves of this singular opportunity.

Glee Club
Meeting to-day at 2 p.m. in R.V.C. This practice important because of approaching concert.

First Games of the New House League Played on Campus Rink

Last night the initial games of the newly formed "Inter House" league were played on the campus rink and a rough tough brand of hockey resulted in the Diocesan College overwhelming the Presbyterian College in the first game 9 to 2 and in the second a strong United College squad trounced Douglas Hall 5-0.

The opening game was a blitzkrieg of goals for the pious Anglican lads aided no doubt by a fierce blizzard which hid players puck and spectators. The hockey was merely a rough and tumble shinny with frequent falls, lost pucks, disappearing referees, and many injuries.

For the Anglicans Norsworthy and White netted two goals each with Ascot getting 3. Owen impressive in the nets; as also was the Presbyterian College goaler Kennedy whenever they could see the puck. Morgan played a bruising game on the Anglican defence helping to keep the puck away from his nets.

J. Denny scored the first Presbyterian College goal on a pass from Glen Cowan and a few seconds later Cowan potted another on a pass from Denny.

The second game produced better hockey since the blizzard had ceased. Bryson Smith starred with 3 goals to his credit with Sansburn and O'Gillvie one apiece.

Morris as usual excelled in goal and Rapeljek played a superb game on defence.

Cross Country Ski Race At St. Sauveur Sunday

"F" Second Team Blanks "D" Coy.

A strong "F" Coy. team shut out "D" Coy. 4-0, yesterday, in a scheduled "B" class inter-company hockey game. This was "D" Coy's second straight loss and it dropped them still farther back in the cellar. "F" Coy. were only able to ice five men but LeFebvre of "D" reinforced them and scored what proved to be the winning goal.

Langevin furnished "F" Coy. with the needed edge for he led the scoring with two goals while Norris followed with a goal and two assists. LeFebvre completed the whitewash.

FROSH FORCE PLAY.

When the teams took the ice it looked as though the freshmen might outguess the lawyers and come through with a victory. However after forcing the play for most of the first period, LeFebvre broke from a scramble near "D's" net and angled a shot past Kenny at 15:10. Once again "D" went on the offensive but the final whistle sounded without any further scoring.

LAWYERS OPEN FIRE.

The second period turned out to be the reverse of the previous, with "D" coy. turning on the pressure from the start and at 5:40 Norris put them two up with a clean shot from the corner. Then both teams went back to battling from end to end with light snow slowing the game up perceptibly.

At 16:10 Beullack and Langevin combined to notch another with the latter converting the pass for the tally. "D" Coy. fought back hard but once again Langevin broke from a scramble on a pass from Norris and rifled a shot past "sergeant-major" Kenny as the final whistle sounded.

Punch Bott to Defend Title Saturday

The Annual Laurentian Zone Jumping Championship is scheduled to get under way at the Cote des Neiges Hill at 2.30 this Saturday. Punch Bott, the defending champion, will be in evidence, and his 160 ft. record jump will be at stake. Many upsets are anticipated. It is hoped that many skiers will participate, in particular Chris Mamen, Fred Moore, Karre Olsen, John Foster, and other enthusiasts who wish to enter are asked to get in touch with Fred Rolland at 470 St. Francis Xavier by tonight at 6 o'clock.

Also hillmarkers are being looked for and may watch free of charge, otherwise the fee will be twenty-five cents.

This jump is one of the major skiing events of the season here and keen competition is expected with McGill again showing its strong rivalry.

The Montreal Orchestra has launched an appeal for funds to complete the rest of this season's concerts. The response of the students to this appeal has not been as good as it might be. All students, especially those holding season tickets are urged to contribute. Any amount will be gladly accepted. Contributions may be left at the Conservatorium office.

M.R.T.B. - R.M.R. - Black Watch and Others to Enter

This Sunday will see the first of a series of large military ski races at St. Sauveur. The meet will be sponsored by the McGill Outing Club and the Red Birds Ski Club, and most of the local units will take part. The race is scheduled to start at 12 noon E.D.T., and the course, about 7 miles long, will be run over a good part of the route of the M.R.T.B. meet of last Sunday. All cross country skiers of classes A, B and C are qualified to enter.

FOUR-MEN TEAMS.

Each team will consist of 4 men, and it is hoped that each company will field a team so that the M.R.T.B., which showed up so well in last Friday's hockey game, may not rest on its laurels. Those who intend to turn out for the ski platoon are especially urged to enter in the race. All competitors must meet at the Red Birds ski cabin at St. Sauveur.

OTHER ENTRANTS.

Among the units represented will be the R.M.R. and the Black Watch, but the McGill battalion, bolstered by so many star skiers stands a good chance of carrying the meet. All those intending to race should get in touch with Jack Bailey before Thursday noon. A good turnout is essential to the M.R.T.B. chances, and it is hoped that the Red Soldiers will avail themselves of this opportunity of proving that "There's nothing the matter with old McGill" as far as skiing goes.

Volley Ball Results

Only two regular games were played in the inter-platoon volleyball league; in these Platoon 10 defeated Platoon 18, 15-5 and 15-12; and Pl. 13 defeated Pl. 6, 15-4 and 15-3. Four other platoons were crossed out of the running. At the present there are sixteen platoons left for the elimination rounds, they are: 4, 5, 6, 8, 10, 12, 13, 14, 15, 18, 19, 22, 23, 26, Macdonald 1 and 2.

The scores of the first games of the qualifying round were as follows: 4 Pn. beat 14 Pn., 13-15, 15-8, 15-9, 15-13. Pn. 19 defeated Pn. 15, 15-9, 15-15, 13-15, 15-8, 16-14. Finally Pn. 12 beat Pn. 5, 10-15, 15-13, 12-15, 18-16, 10-15. These knock-out rounds will continue today.

Psychological Society

Dean Hall of Sir George Williams College will address the Psychological Society on Thursday, February 6, on the topic, "Psychology in Everyday Life."

It is appropriate that Dean Hall should once again take part in a meeting of the McGill Psychological Society, for he was one of its organizers and first president in his student years at McGill.

"Psychology in Everyday Life" is a topic upon which he is particularly qualified to speak in view of his intense and lasting interest in Psychological problems, and his broad experience in the educational and social fields. In his present position as dean of George Williams College, he undoubtedly has had the opportunity to see many psychological problems developed and solve themselves in his students.

He will speak from the point of view of an individual who has found psychology's worth in its application to everyday living rather than from that of a practical psychologist.

There will be a meeting of the camera club Wednesday, February 5th at 7.30 p.m. in the Music Room of the Union. The Executive asks that all interested should turn out, as otherwise due to lack of interest

Names Must Be Handed in by February 25

Students Society Will Elect Officers Wednesday, March 12th

The deadline for nominations to positions in the Students' Society has been set at two-thirty p.m., Tuesday, February 25th, 1941. Nominations must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Society in the McGill Union by that time.

Presidential nominations are to be handed in, in writing, to the Secretary, signed by 50 members of the society. There should be two or more names submitted for the presidency.

The positions of President and Vice-President of the McGill Debating Union will be filled at the same time. These names are subject to the same conditions except that they require only ten signatures.

Nominations for the posts of President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Representatives on the Athletics Board are also being called for. These must be signed by at least twenty-five members of the Students' Society.

Women students may sign only the nominations for the President of the Society.

No names will be accepted as candidates after the specified time. Elections will be held on Wednesday, March 12th, 1941.

INTRAMURAL

WATER POLO

Lists are being circulated among all Platoons by the Platoon Sports Representatives in order to assure all Water Polo Enthusiasts an opportunity of representing their Company in the coming Inter-Company Water Polo League. Anyone who is a fair swimmer is invited to try out for the Company Teams regardless of whether or not he has played the game before. If the Circulating Lists happen to miss you, you can still be counted in by signing your name on the Master List posted on the Locker Room Notice Board. For detailed information consult your Platoon or Company Sports Representative or get in touch with Bob Kingsland, manager, at WI. 1658, or Pete Bourne, captain, at WI. 2910, of the Swimming and Water-Polo Club.

Sports Representatives are asked to complete their lists immediately and to turn them over to the Athletic Office at the earliest possible date.

INDOOR SOFTBALL LEAGUE

As the Volley Ball League nears its completion and the Sadie Hawkins' Week makes men's fancies turn to love and hence to the Spring, interest is growing in the prospects of an Indoor Softball League. The original thought was to hold the league on an Inter-Company basis but evidence seems to point to sufficient interest to warrant both an Inter-Platoon and an Inter-Company League.

In order that all may be in readiness for an early start in what shows every sign of being one of the most popular leagues of the season, Sports Representatives are being asked to canvass their Platoons for all likely Team Prospects.

If you want to play Softball let your Platoon Sports Representative know at once.

Music, Skits Featured In 'Students' Revue'

The Chamber Music Society of Upper Peel Street and a number of short skits will highlight the "Students' Revue," scheduled to be produced in March. According to John Young, Chairman of the Revue, "The members of the Chamber Society, noted for their sensitive interpretation of the classics, should not fail to draw the music-loving public."

Plans for the "Revue" will be discussed at 8 tonight in the Music Room of the Union, when casting for the various parts in the skits will also begin. All interested in taking part are invited by the Chairman to attend this first meeting.

The executive promises that the production will be entirely different from any other revue that has ever been put on at McGill, and states that some excellent ideas have been presented for consideration.

place phone Tom Daly at CR. 2645.

The trip will not be confined to engineers; any science students or others interested in touring a modern paper mill under expert guidance and spending a week-end skiing are cordially invited. Anyone contemplating making the trip is asked to notify Tom Daly at the number given above as soon as possible, particularly engineers who must get leave from their military drill on Saturday.

While skis are not necessary for the trip, it has been suggested that all those possessing them or in a position to borrow them show up at Windsor station on the morning of the 8th, equipped for a week-end on the hickories. A novel ski race has been planned for the Sunday, which together with a Saturday night in St. Adele is expected to meet all requirements for a big time, engineering style.

PROFESSORS AND JOKES

One of the devices employed by the professor to reduce the vulture-like characteristic of his students is the "joke." And we cannot help admire the generous manner in which university faculties give refuge to the world's hoary, old, superannuated gags, furnishing them with an asylum as long as they both shall live. Typical of professorial litter-patter is the coniferous, or evergreen, variety of joke. This species has life breathed into it annually. Like a fine wine, it improves with age, because the civilization in which it was conceived has gradually disintegrated, and there is no possibility of it being recognized by any living person, even assuming that any living person would be broad-minded enough to recognize it. The only pit-fall which the professor must avoid is the instance of the joke in a language which has become obsolete.

Thus a story that made Sophocles roll in the aisles will fail completely today, because of the barrier of the Greek language. A live-wire professor can usually avoid this mistake, however.

The only other disadvantage to these perennial bloomers is the unpleasant case of the student who repeats a course. Professors have wincingly passed many a moron, simply because they cannot bear to have a student in the class who will recognize the body when the shroud is removed, and who will subsequently inform his colleagues that the pedagogic gramophone needle gets in the same crack at the same time every year.
